SAILOR KAUKI WAS DROWNED

The report of the drowning of Kauhi, a sailor of the steamer Helene at Papaikou, Hawaii, November 18, was received yesterday by High Sheriff Henry from Deputy Sheriff Fetter. The report includes statements by Captain Nelson, First Officer Wier, boatsteerer Solomon and seaman Kalanull of the Helene. The deceased was about 22 years of age, married and resided at Aiea. The report says:

"Kauhi was a sailor on board the S. S. Helene. On the morning of November 18 the Helene was discharging freight at Papaikou and Kauhi was working in one of the boats. While the boat was lying at Papaikou near the derrick a heavy sea came and swamped the boat. Four of the men jumped into the sea and swam towards the steamer, but Kauhi did not jump. He stayed in the boat until it drifted among the rocks, then he jumped out and swam towards shore. Some one threw a life-buoy to him and he made several attempts to catch it, but did not succeed. Immediately after that he sank and was not seen again that day. The undercurrent must have carried him away."

ROAD-BREAKING MACHINE HERE

In the freight landed from the Alameda is a heavy road-breaking machine consigned to the Territorial Government. The machine is mounted on heavy wheels, one in front and one at the rear, two being centrally located. The machine is not large but is very heavy. In the base are perforations through which steel spikes are placed. By a graduation of the front and rear wheels, the machine, being drawn by horses or a traction engine, rips up a hard road.

The transport Dix, with mules, burros and horses, was looked for yesterday from San Francisco. The vessel is now out eleven days. Although the transport may have met bad weather between here and the coast, the Pacific Ocean charts state that at this time of the year the Asiatic waters will be fairly free from typhoons and hurricanes. The transport is therefore likely to land her cargo in Manila in fairly good condition.

DIX SHOULD HAVE GOOD WEATHER

GOODS ON A DOCK DAMAGED

During Sunday's rainstorm nearly a thousand boxes' worth of freight landed from the ship George Curtis, on the Bishop dock, was damaged. Waterfronters say that few docks here are constructed in a way which will prevent water from running in under the sheds. There is no crown to the flooring and a rainfall generally sends the water to the central portions. The Oceanic dock has something of a dip toward the edge of the dock.
